major moves to amend it. Among the amendments brought down was one by Senator Dricker (R-Ohio) and Cain (R-Wash.) which would have prohibited segregation on the basis of race, creed or color in the renting of public housing.

The proposal was beaten 49 to 31, with supporters of President Truman's civil rights program leading the fight against it. They called the amendment a move to kill the bill and said civil rights should be handled in separate legislation.

The amendment which touched off the noisier fireworks was one by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to strike from the bill $12,500,000 in grants to farmers for improvement of sub-standard farms. That is only one section of the three-part farm program.

Taft's amendment was defeated, 41 to 20, after Senator Langer (R-ND) had threatened to talk all night against it.

Taft's amendment no sooner was defeated than Langer moved to double the $12,500,000 farm fund. The proposal carried, 41 to 20.

That set off an exchange between Senators Neely (D-WV) and Capehart (R-Ind) as to whether the Democrats or the Republicans are the farmers' best friends.

The major provisions of the housing bill are these:

1. The federal government would contribute up to $300,000,000 annual for up to 40 years to help finance 1,000,000 public housing units which would be built in the next six years. The $100,000 figure is a compromise between the 1,000,000 Mr. Truman wanted in seven years, and the 600,000 a group of Republican senators wanted in six years.

The federal government's share of the cost is a minor part of the total. Most of it would be met from the rents collected, along with local community contributions. The housing units would be owned and operated by local communities.

2. A five-year slum clearance program, with two-thirds of the cost to be met by the federal government and the balance by local communities. The bill authorizes $1,000,000,000 in federal loans and $50,000,000 in grants.

3. A three-part $275,000,000 farm housing program: 33-year loans at interest, to be available to owners of self-sustaining farms who are otherwise unable to finance adequate housing; a similar loan program, along with annual federal contributions, to help farmers who own homes but have no money to make good loans and grants; and a program for minor improvement and repair of dwellings on farms which could not be made self-sustaining.

L. R. Police Baffled Over Slaying
Little Rock, April 22 — (UP) — The unidentified murderer of Ellwood D. (Dick) Neal, young Little Rock businessman, was still at large today as officers searched for the slightest of clues on which to base an all-out investigation in the baffling case.

The 30-year-old assistant scoutmaster and manager of the Waldburger Luggage shop was found stabbed to death Wednesday night near his parked car on state Highway 161 several miles east of North Little Rock. Pulaski Coroner Howard Dishong said he had been stabbed in seven different places by a weapon that apparently was a long-bladed pocket knife.

Two separate "strategy conferences" in which half a dozen officers participated were held yesterday as Sheriff Tom Guiley promised that "we are going to do everything in our power to find the murderer."

Guiley said the case was made more difficult because of the lapse between the time Neal's body was found and when it was determined that he had been murdered. North Little Rock Fire Captain Henry Gray, and two companions found the body of the bespectacled man as they were returning from a frog hunt. They first thought he had been the victim of a hit-and-run driver and he was removed to a North Little Rock funeral home before the stab wounds were discovered.

Meanwhile, the road had been open to traffic and all possibility of finding footprints or car tire tracks had been lost.

Mrs. Yborbo in Dispute Over Insurance Money

New Bedford, Mass., April 20 (UP)—Mrs. Wilma Yborbo was embroiled today in a dispute with her mother-in-law as to who would get the body and $10,000 government insurance money of the soldier-husband she fatally shot in Germany.

Mrs. Leon Yborbo of Victoria, Tex., mother of Sgt. John Yborbo, who was slain by his wife at the Fritzlar, Germany home last September, said she would fight for the body in Texas. The soldier's body now is in the Brooklyn, N. Y., army base.

The dead soldier's mother said she harbored no resentment against her daughter-in-law but claimed that "after what happened it wouldn't be right" to have the body buried in Massachusetts.

Guilty added. Bloodhounds sent to the scene were unable to pick up a trail.

The investigation has centered mainly around an attempt by Capt. Earl Scroggins of the state police to obtain some fingerprints from Neal's car. The victim's mother said he left home in the car at 8:30 p. m. to attend a stamp club meeting at which he never arrived.

James McNeil, an employee of the state highway department, whose house is near the scene of the crime, said his children came to his room about 8:30 p. m. and reported that they had heard a cry for help. McNeil said he didn't investigate because "this is a regular lovers' lane out here and something is always going on."

Pros. Atty. Edwin E. Dunaway said that no suspects had been arrested early today and that only business associates and relatives of Neal had been questioned to find out if they could shed any light on the case.

Funeral services were to be held at 4:30 p. m. this afternoon at one of Little Rock's largest churches—Winfield Methodist.

ROGER THE LODGER

The storm was at our back, but the night would be cold and we'd have a long walk if the car stopped. We hadn't seen another car on the road for an hour, and after dark there would be even fewer cars abroad. Likely no one would have gas to spare if we did flag him down. The countryside was almost tenantless; what few houses there were were scattered miles apart on the sheep ranches.

We pulled into Dupuyer cramped and lame from muscles tense from pressing.

Davis' garage was locked. I squinted around hopelessly for some kind of hotel. Major got out of the car and stopped a boy riding up the street on horseback. "The garage locked for the day?" he asked.

"Probably so. Less you can find Ted. Gas shortage," he explained. With help from the boy, Major sighted the pool hall and, hitching up his trousers, made for Ted—we hoped.

A few minutes later Major reappeared, followed shortly by a man pulling on a leather jacket. He unlocked the pump and let us out. A thankful, refusing to accept coupons for it. "Wish I could of given you the gas, too," he said. "My boy's flying with the Navy."

"Got to make up time," Major observed, as he pressed the throttle to the floor. "We hit 110. 'Lois o' gas now and no worries."

Coming off the highway into a town, we had the illusion that we could walk faster than the 30-mile speed posted. Major compromised on the 15.

The patrolman who made the arrest rode a motorcycle with sidecar. He ordered Major into the little side seat and told Molly she could follow along to the station house if she wanted to, but he warned her it wouldn't do any good. "This judge is tough," he said. "No fines. Just jail."

"That's ridiculous," Major exclaimed. "His understood the Army is up to the eyes in discipline."

"Supreme Court don't understand it," the policeman knew more than Major, and his knowledge was right. Major got three days and he served them.

We left Major at the jail, disconsolately thrown into a room which contained only half enough beds to go around. The denizens already housed there explained that they took turns standing and sleeping all day since he was new, he'd have to stand the night. Drunks, speeders, and other petty law-breakers made up the cell congregation.

Molly told Major not to worry. That she'd return immediately with his overnight kit. The boys and catcalls which greeted this remark caused Major to tell her harshly not to bother.

A drunk picked a body loose off his chest and crushed it between his fingernails. Molly shrieked and I led her out of the cell block, drove her home, and put her to bed.

Rob heard me coming downstairs just as he was tuning in on Fred Allen. "Where you been?" he asked.

"Glacier Park," I answered hurriedly to get to more important matters. "Major's in jail."

"I asked you where you've been," Rob said testily, apparently convinced I was steering him and not more concerned by my telling him Major was in jail than by my saying we'd been to Glacier Park.

"Glacier Park," I never knew a man with such resistance to the truth.

"And Major's in jail," I repeated. "Are you going to tell me where you've been or aren't you?" If I said we'd been to the moon and it really was made of green cheese, it couldn't have been madder. It was all so silly, I laughed. That laugh only served to increase his anger.

"God, how I hate liars," Rob

DOROTHY DIX Married Lotharios

Dear Miss Dix: How are young girls to cope with married men who deceitfully date unsuspecting girls? Within the last two years three of us single girls, who live decent and moral lives in the homes of our parents, have been properly introduced to young men, only to discover, quite by accident later on, that they were married and had children.

Has the situation come to the point that girls should require written affidavits as to the marital status of every man they meet? Not only are our reputations at stake, but also what about the wives of these wolves? Can you tell us how we are to know when we are stepping out with a single or married man?

DISCOURAGED GIRLS
Answer: I am afraid that about the only way that a pure young girl can tell whether the man who comes courting her is married or single is by his loquaciousity. If he looks and acts like a scared rabbit and stumbles and stutters over telling Mary Anne, that she is the most beautiful and wonderful girl in the world, and ends up by asking her to be his, it is proof positive that he is a bachelor.

On the other hand, a married man's technique as a lover is smooth and suave and well oiled with much flattery. So a woman had best get wise when a man tells her he has spent his life looking for her. Also, one of the earmarks of the married Lothario is that while he makes burning promises, romantic love, he stops just before he reaches the proposed point.

Other Points
Of course, there are a few other points by which a married man, is posing as a single man, as for example, his knowing away, as for instance, his knowing away, as for about women's little ways. Of course, if there is a baby in the family, there is a telltale give away in the greasy spot on Papa's shoulder that he acquired when he burped the infant.

But, on the whole, girls don't have much chance of finding out whether the handsome stranger has a wife and a household of kids, or not. All married men should wear a badge with TAKEN printed on it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a married man 19 years old, my wife is 22 and we have a baby. My wife is very lazy and wants me to do all the work while she does nothing. I want a divorce, but she won't give me one. She won't even let me go uptown to a movie alone, because she thinks that I am going to run away from her. But I wouldn't leave, because she and I both love and want the child.

I can't stand her nagging any more. What shall I do?

A HELPLESS HUSBAND
Answer: One of the tragedies of life is the too young marriage. In our childish ignorance we take up on ourselves debts and responsibilities that we can never settle, and as long as we live we have to pay, and pay for our folly.

That is your trouble, as it is the heartbreak of millions of other people. You married when you were an undeveloped kid, not knowing what sort of a man you were going to be, or even what you wanted to make of yourself, and now you have to pay the penalty. But don't let this get you down. You cannot undo your mistake, but you can keep from repeating them. At 19 the world is all before you. Go out and fight until you make a success of yourself.

UNHAPPY GANG
Dear Dorothy Dix: Please tell us girls of ways to meet boys. We are lonesome because we don't know where to go or what to do to get acquainted with boys. Can you help us to get dates?

Answer: In these days when boys and girls go to school together and when almost every girl has some sort of job, I don't see how it is possible for girls to keep from meeting boys. Probably the boys are just as much afraid of you as you are of them. Why don't you break the ice between you by organizing a boy and girl club where you can play games together and get chummy?

DDT Spraying Protects All the House

Emphasizing the fact that one unexpected house in a neighborhood can endanger not only the occupants of that house, but the entire neighborhood, W. C. Reynolds, area supervisor for malaria control in Hempstead county, today urged all residents to participate in the drive against insects and the diseases they carry.

"Insects will be killed if they fly into a house sprayed with DDT, but they can pick up disease in an unsprayed house and spread it throughout the community," said Mr. Reynolds. "The Malaria Control Program must have the cooperation of all the householders if it is to be effective in stamping out malaria as a threatening disease problem of the South."

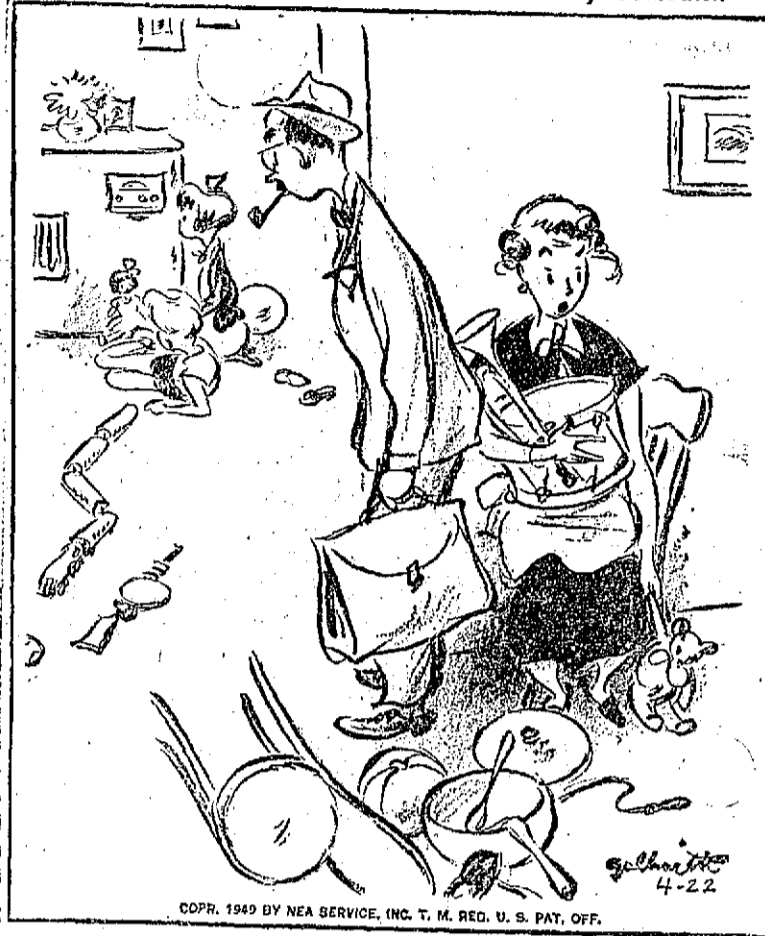

A fully protected house is one where good sanitation is practiced daily, in addition to the use of DDT. Mr. Reynolds stressed, "Good sanitation gets at the source of the pest trouble. It eliminates fly and mosquito breeding places, directly reducing the insect population. With sanitation, insect-proofing, and DDT house spraying, residents should have a summer free

Cotton Hill Up to Old Tricks for Clarksdale

By The Associated Press

Cotton Hill is up to his old tricks in the Cotton States League. The Clarksdale ace of last season came through with a four-hit performance before the homefolks Thursday night to give the Planters an 8-2 victory over Helena.

It was the Scaporters' first loss in three games with the Planters and left Pine Bluff alone at the top of the league as all other games were rained out.

Hill's feat continued an unusual case of early-season mastery of pitchers over hitters. In the nine Cotton States games to date, there have been a couple of two-hit jobs, four-hitters and two five-hitters. Greenwood and Greenville managed to start their game at Greenville, that city's first of the season, but the rain came in the second inning and the homecoming ahead.

2-1. League President Al Haraway was among the 3,000 fans who went away disappointed.

Friday night's games: Greenwood at Greenville (2). Pine Bluff at Hot Springs. Helena at Clarksdale. El Dorado at Natchez.

Baseball Can Test Skill Forecasters

Amateur baseball forecasters were given a chance today to test their skill and bid for prizes in the Wings Sports-Shirts Illustrated March League Baseball Contest. Over 10,000 prizes will be awarded to contestants whose entries come closest to the final standings of the American League and National League teams.

Free entry blanks may be obtained at Rephams, which is serving as headquarters for the nationwide contest.

The first six prizes will include government bonds in the amounts of $2,500, $1,000, $500, $100 and $50. The last four $25. government bonds will be awarded. One hundred and ninety-one additional prizes, each consisting of a box of three Wings shirts, will be presented for the next most accurate listings.

The forecasts are required to list the teams of the American and National Leagues in order in which they judge they will finish the season. Next to each team the contestant is to write his judgment of the final percentage of games won, indicating this in three figures similar to regular listings. Prizes will be awarded to those contestants whose lists come closest to the final team standings in both leagues. Where two or more contestants list the same standings, prizes will be awarded to the entries closest to the actual percentages of games won. In cases of absolute ties, bond prizes will be split, and other prizes duplicated.

The contest judges will be the editors of Sports Illustrated Magazine. The contest closes on May 31, 1949. Prize winners will be announced at the end of the league play.

Follow the team trends and the activities of leading players every day by reading The Hope Star. Check your opinion and prediction with the experts to win a prize in this exciting Wings shirt contest. Get your Wings entry blank at Rephams from Oscar, Fred or Gilson.

Hot Rocks to Face New Test at New Orleans

By The Associated Press

Sirens of the amazing Little Rock Travelers, now rolling along at the top of the Southern Association with six victories in as many tries, will undergo a new test this weekend.

The hot Rocks will open a four-game series with the second-place Pelicans at New Orleans Friday night.

While the Travelers licked Memphis for the sixth straight time, 7-3, Thursday night, New Orleans came to life for a pair of wins over Mobile, 6-4 and 10-4.

Memphis squeezed its three runs out of nine hits off Milo Johnson, Little Rock right-hander, who registered his second victory of the year. The Travs stretched ten hits off four Memphis twirlers into seven markers. Johnny Grice cracked his second home run of the Rocks in the eighth inning.

A New Orleans Jim Atkins kept the Bears well under control during most of the second game. The Pelk got a run in the second with a two-base hit by Mel Ruo and a single by George McDonald. They added another in the third and two in the fifth—then rammed across six insurance runs in the seventh. New Orleans won the first game in the fourth inning, scoring five runs. Two of Mobile's runs came on a homer by Fred Leonard, young outfielder.

Friday night's games: Chattanooga at Atlanta. Nashville at Birmingham. Memphis at Mobile. Little Rock at New Orleans.

Feller, Paige on Cleveland Injured List

St. Louis, April 22 — (UP) — Cleveland Indian Pitchers Bob Feller and Satchel Paige were on the injured list as the club headed home today.

Feller's pitching arm was sore. It had become so painful in the Tuesday season-opener with the Browns that he had to be relieved after two innings.

Paige's right leg was damaged while he chased flies in pre-game batting practice Wednesday. The trouble was diagnosed by club trainers as a pulled muscle.

13,000 Women Enter Bowling Contest

Columbus, O., April 21 — (P) — Thirteen thousand women bowlers will converge on Columbus in the next 41 days. And more than half of them will leave with prize money.

That's the nice part about knocking down pins in the Women's International Bowling congress. They've got a pretty fair chance of coming up with a prize—even if it's only one of the small ones.

Maybe that's why a record number of female keglers will participate in the annual classic starting today.

The WIBC secretary says she thinks it's a good idea to pass those prizes around among as many women keglers as possible.

"We stretch out the prize list," Mrs. Emma Phelan said, "and we have more women go home happy. Women aren't like the men in bowling. Our members want to have a prize—even if it's only for $3."
